You'll note a lack of calculated values in the Archetypes. This is due to two things: laziness, and because it makes the Archetypes less usable without a copy of the AFMBE core rulebook.

Gear: Secluded mansion with shrinking staff, several cars, security systems and privacy wall with locked gate, personal assistant, assistant for the personal assistant, pretty much anything else money could buy

Personality: "I keep hoping I'll wake up and all this will be a movie, but I don't think that is going to happen. And I don't think protesting the walking dead will do any good. I can't believe how many years I spent protesting this, protesting that, outraged and outrageous. Now it comes down to the end of the world and there's nothing left to do, nothing to protest, and no one to protest to.

My agent called from his car last week. He was trapped out on the highway behind a pileup and the dead people were about to get in. How can Ideal with that? I asked Juan to go and find John, but Juan just went home to his family instead. Before he left, Juan showed me how to chlorinate the pool and said I could use it for drinking water. He also planted vegetables for us in the rose garden. I gave him money and a credit card and a gun. I hope he made it home to his family. I think he had the right idea. I'm already home, and I hope Penelope and Whitney stay. Whitney wanted to go look for her boyfriend, but she gave up and came back after a couple of hours. She said the dead people were all around the freeway trying to break into cars that had run out of gas. She won't say what else she saw, but the television shows how bad it is out there.

No one answers their phones anymore. I think maybe there's no one left to talk to. Maybe - maybe - their cell phone batteries are all dead. Maybe they're all dead and just left their cell phones with their credit cards and contracts and scripts and now they're out there somewhere, killing and eating. For the first time in my life I'm afraid someone will remember me and they'll make their way out here. Or worse, all those looters and murderers and rapists might find us. I'm afraid, so terribly afraid..."

Quote: "Don't leave me. Please?" or "Hello? Hello? Is anybody there?"

Astronaut (Survivor)

Attributes
Str: 3  Dex: 3  Con: 3
Int: 4  Per: 4  Wil: 3
Life Points:  Endurance Points:
Speed:  Essence:
Qualities:
Nerves of Steel  Quick Reaction Time
Contacts (Space program)(2)  Status (4)
Hard to Kill (4) - represents fitness and endurance training  Situational Awareness

Drawbacks:
Showoff
Delusions of Grandeur (-1) - represents the extreme level of self-confidence that might freak some people completely out; it also represents latent jealousy/insecurity on the part of others rather than a problem with the astronaut

Skills:
Bureaucracy - 2 (government employee)
Computers - 3
Computer Programming - 2
Pilot(Spacecraft) - 2 (most spacecraft are self-piloted)
Electronics - 3
Gun (Handgun) - 1 (left over from former Air Force Officer training)
Zero-G Operations - 3 (new skill - see below*)
Survival (Pick one area) - 1 (left over from former Air Force Officer training)
Pilot (EVA Suit)- 4
Sciences - 4 points total, recommend: engineering, astrobiology, geology, physics, etc.
Electronic Surveillance - 4 (represents use of spacecraft instruments)
Pilot (Jet) - 3
Pilot (Prop) - 3

Gear: EVA pack, space suit and helmet, mission patches

Personality: "I was ready for space junk. I was even halfway ready for alien contact. The last thing I expected was the dead rising from their graves and overrunning the earth. We watched from orbit in the Freedom 1 space station until our supplies started to run low. When it was obvious that there would be no more resupply, we had to make a decision. And we decided to abandon ship. We brought the space plane down and ended here up here, over the rainbow in Kansas.

I suppose Freedom 1 is still up there, circling endlessly around this pale blue dot in space. That is, until her orbit decays. I hope the observation module lands on some of the zombies. But don't worry, kid. We'll get back up there someday. Someday."

Quote: "Ah, roger Houston. We are go for launch."

New Skill:
*Zero-G Operations - Available only to current and former astronauts. This skill represents the character's ability to get around in the absence of gravity or in the presence of micro- or reduced gravity environments (such as the lunar surface). This skill also indicates that the character is experienced in high-G operations such as vehicle acceleration and lift-off, as the only way to practice low- or Zero-G operations in the first place is to get into space or at least low orbit.

Gear: Zato-Ichi-type (straight-bladed) katana in wooden sheath (used as walking stick)

Personality: "I wouldn't say Charlie's little trick in the Nam ruined my life. I was always pretty ugly, and as far as I know, that hasn't changed. It forced me to focus. Focus allowed me to master Kendo, Kemp, Tai Kwan Do, Aikido, and a dozen other styles you'll never know about now. If I hadn't had the martial arts, I would've went mad. Not that I wasn't crazy before and not that I'm not crazy now. Aw, hell, it doesn't matter. Life is what it is. Now there's no more Charlie, and no more hippies spitting on me for serving my country. Life is what it is, and my life has more freedom now that it every had before.

I can't say I find the dead to be particularly scary. They're easier to kill than the living because they seem unable to move silently, and they always walk in a straight line. No problem. I hear these walking dead are ugly enough to scare the devil into church on Sunday. Ugly? Everyone looks the same to me, dead or alive. Besides, fear is just a state of mind. Focus. Listen. Breathe. Let your chi flow. That's what I do. That's how I know when they are getting close. Just stay out of my way and I'll take care of things. But by all means sing out if you see more than a dozen."

Personality:

"Like, they cancelled all classes today until further notice, and posted those "No Unnecessary Travel" restriction notices all over campus. It wouldn't be so bad, I mean, if we could have, like, an End of the World Party or something, but the Campus Police tossed all the dorm rooms last night looking for drugs, alcohol, and weapons. By the time the riot was over, a lot of the windows got smashed and some zombies managed to get in. We locked them in the rear wing of the first floor and everyone moved to the A and B wings. Now we're crammed three and four to a room.

Like, whatever. I'm out of here. It's getting too weird for me. Several of us are going to make a run for it - just try to get out of town and see if things are any better in the countryside. Anything would be better than the crap they've been rationing in the student center cafeteria."

Personality:
"Not many of them zombies out here in the boonies. Just me and Pistolero, my horse, and the cattle. We get along just fine. People still have to eat, and they still like to eat steak, so there's plenty of work for the likes of me. 'Course, the rodeos are a lot more interesting nowadays, especially the Dead Roping contests. Y'know what I'm talking about, right? The idea is to rope 'em and heel 'em, then string 'em up. The rider that gets the most zombies in ten minutes wins the pot.

I reckon we do all right out here. Not many folks make it out this far, dead or alive. Gas is getting pretty hard to come by, so Pistolero is worth his weight in gold. Good ol' pony there. Smart too. Between me and Pistolero and Dog, we just about got ourselves a tribe. All I need now is a woman!"

Quote:

Thank goodness those two SWAT troopers joined us. The firepower will help. Now if we can just find someplace safe to wait this out. Maybe someplace closer to one of the larger cities. It's just too dangerous to try to get to Canada right now."

"I've got to chance it. Mom and Dad never came home. The phone lines are down and the television and radio just keep repeating the same emergency announcements. I know Mom and Dad aren't coming home unless they come home with more of those, those, dead people. I'm afraid that will happen. The television announcer says it happens a lot. The announcer also said that a lot of the rescue centers the government set up are full of dead people now and anyone who goes there will be killed.

Sorry. I duck every time I hear guns shooting. That one was close. Someone down the block must have seen one. Or it was a robbery. Usually there's more shooting if it's a robbery.

I heard from Grandpa the day before the phones went dead. He said they were safe out on the farm. But since he doesn't have a cell phone, I don't know how they are making do. The farm's not far, just a few hours away. I'm sure I can make it if I have enough gas in the car. I'll just have to do my best. And pray. I-don't know what I'll do if they're not okay. They HAVE to be okay."

Personality:"What do you mean by "living a life of quiet desperation"?I'm doing alright. I mean, I'm doing as well as anybody can these days. When's the government going to get busy and take care of this zombie problem? I wish they'd get the streets fixed too. All the tanks and armored cars that've been driving through the neighborhood have really torn things up. One of these days I'm going to get fed up and give my selectman a piece of my mind!"

The Regular Joe/Jane is one of the faceless millions of people that live from check to check, week to week, struggling to balance debt against income and trying desperately to get ahead. Skills are generic enough to allow for a good chance of survival with the right insight and a lucky break or two. Taking a few more Drawbacks would allow for greater variety in Qualities and Skills.

"There's a lot of folks out there who just gave up when the reanimates started to overrun the cities. But not me. It's important to have standards, and it's important to hold on to whatever we can salvage. I'm not giving up. I'm hauling the mail."

"I like it best when I can tag along with a National Guard convoy. I take a lot less gunfire that way. As for the reanimates, they're too stupid to be much of a threat as long as you are careful. That's what the air cannon is for."

"I just pull up to the addressee and give a shout out to let them know I'm here, then I shoot their mail onto their roof or over their fence. Most times I can get a bull's-eye. When I miss, well, that's when I have to chamber a round, grab the hammer, and go the front door to hand the good citizens their mail. I mean, why shouldn't I? They paid their taxes all those years, and now they get free postage!"

Personality:

"This whole Zombie thing is pretty cool. The stuff on Current News Television Now is way better than any of those old movies. But I'm not afraid! I'm way faster than any Zombie. I saw one walking down the street last night. It was all slow and stumbly and gross and stupid, like Mom's sucker-turd boyfriend. Really stupid. I shot it with three rocks and it fell down and couldn't hardly stand back up. I coulda shot it again, but I had to try to call my Real Dad again. Isa another Zombie this morning. I shot it with my Wrist Rocketeer and it started crying and bleeding and ran down the street like a 'fraidy cat girlie kid. I found another one trying to get in the front door. It looked just like a real person, but I knew it was a Zombie, so I yanked open the door and hit it with my bat until it ran away. They're either slow or wimps.

I'm so not afraid of Zombies. I'm gonna ride my bike out to the lake and live there with my Real Dad. I'm smart and quick. I don't need grownups to get there. And now I don't have to take my medicine anymore. It sucked! I hated it! And I hate Mom, 'cos Mom wouldn't take me anyway. She never takes me to see my Real Dad.

Besides, Mom and her boyfriend, Mr. Rich-Guy-Jerk-Wad, are already somewhere else, because they haven't been home for two days now. I bet they went on a vacation and didn't wanna take me with them. So now me and my Real Dad are going to have our own vacation and we're gonna do whatever we want. It'll be great!"

I hope this bunch of diggers tries to fight. My boys have been restless lately. Too much fighting back at the camp. They need to blow off some steam, and a bunch of dumba$$ farmhands will be perfect.

"We saw the tractor, so we know they have gasoline. They shot at Stumpy, so we know they have guns and ammunition. And a couple of them were wearing skirts, so we know they have women.

"Well, it's time. SOUND THE CHARGE!"

I find 'em and go back to the Chief and tell him about what I've seen, what I've heard. Then I wait until the fight's over and usually get a decent piece or two of loot, at least a couple gallons of gas for my hog.

It's better than waiting around for people like us to show up. And it's better than being the first poor SOB over the wall. Yep. Finding things is a pretty good job, I'm thinking."

- Survival (Urban) * - 3 (He leadeth the flock unto feast in the midst of famine!)
- Streetwise - 2 (He guideth the flock among the wolves!)

*Survival (Urban): Survival (Urban) functions like any other type of Survival skill, allowing knowledge of where to find food and shelter, avoiding predators (muggers instead of bears), and finding useful tools (scavenging rubble, ruins, dumps, landfill, wreckage yards, etc.). Typically available only to fringe people in the early days of an AFMBE campaign, by the time the Fall is well underway, most survivors will have to possess this skill in order to find desperately needed supplies and parts in the ruined cities that have been overrun by the dead. If anyone remembers the old "Twilight 2000" RPG from the mid-1980s by GDW, Inc., Survival (Urban) is equivalent to T2K's "Scrounging" skill.

Gear:

- Huge, tattered, stained, leather-bound Bible; wide floppy black hat; shabby black vestments; large, stained, chipped, wooden crucifix; .45 ACP

Personality: "Verily, my brothers and sisters, there have been times when I doubted myself. There have been times when I doubted the Word. But hallelujah, brothers and sisters! Hallelujah! No more do I doubt! No longer am I weak! The Lord has shown me the way. He hath lifted me up before my enemies, and restored my soul. And now, brothers and sisters, the Lord calls for you! He calls for you to join Him in this dark hour! He calls for you to plant your feet on His Rock and take up His Holy and Righteous Word! The Lord calls for you to strike down the unclean things and the worldly servants of the Beast with great wrath and fury, even as He strikes down upon the earth in His Good and Right Justice! Verily, my brothers and sisters, the sea and the grave have given up the dead but the Lord is WITH YOU! The Lord will strengthen YOU! The Lord will PROTECT YOU and hold you to His bosom forever and ever, amen! HALLELUJAH!"

Quote: "Repent, brothers and sisters! Repent before it's too late! Behold! The day of the Lord cometh as a thief in the night and none may know the hour! Repent while you still can, brothers and sisters!"

*Craft and Talentless might not seem to go well together, but they do. If you've ever stopped to take a very close look at the crap in most rural "craft" shops, you know exactly what I mean.

Gear:
Snuff or chewing tobacco, spit can, battered pickup truck with gun rack in rear window, 12-gauge shotgun, .30-06 rifle, spotlight(runs off cigarette lighter in truck), three bales of hay in back of pickup truck along with 30-odd pounds of rusty hand tools, sagging trailer house

Personality:
"Whole $%^#$@ world's gone to hell in a hat basket, and that's for sure and for certain. The zombies were bad enough, but now we got out of towners AND the army clogging up the roads. The city folks are more fun to shoot at if you can get away with it. The zombies mostly just stand there and look stupid. Be danged glad when everything gets back to normal. Say, Bubba! Hand me another one o' them coldbeers."

"Yes, I'm sad to say that "coldbeer" is a word in many rural areas. This differentiates the beer in a cooler full of ice from beer in a cooler full of melted ice. In the former case, one drinks "coldbeer."In the latter, one drinks "rodeo beer".

Personality:
"I was certain when we had to put in to port that I'd never have a decent job again. Every day fewer and fewer volunteers returned from foraging expeditions. By the time it was my turn, there were so few of us left that the captain relieved us of duty and sent us out with what was left of the supplies. The captain even gave me his sidearm. We stood at attention on the beach and watched while the captain and the executive officer took the Bullshark out and scuttled it. Then there was no reason to stick around. We headed inland, and it was to looters and other scum that the others were killed.

I'm the last member of the crew of the USS Bullshark (decommissioned), and I miss my brothers-in-arms.

I was ready to throw in the towel until Isra the reactor cooling towers on the horizon. The surviving technicians were trying their best to keep it running and I decided to throw in with them. I haven't regretted it. For a bunch of civilians and longhairs, this is a fine bunch of men and women. We'll keep the lights on for whoever is left alive out there."

Quote: "Try it now! NO! NO! Stop! Someone check the cooling system for leaks again. I think we missed a few."

Personality: "Being a surgeon. Healing the sick. That's why I signed up. Now I'm working on the dead, trying to find out why they reanimate and attack the living. When I can find time off shift I'd like to help for the survivors. Not that there are very many of them. I've only seen three people brought in since yesterday morning, and they were all in critical condition. I suspect I'll see them again soon here in the laboratory. Laboratory! Dreadful! This used to be the premiere teaching surgical suite in the world. Now it's a cross between a zoo and a morgue with a little bit of homicide thrown in.

"Nurse. Nurse? Don't stand too close. They can be fast and they're stronger than they look. Sometimes the straps break. You do NOT want one of them to grab you. No, no, it's quite alright. Just give it a few days and you'll get used to it. No? Have faith in yourself. It'll be alright. Now hand me the bone saw, please."

Personality: "Some days I almost pity those fools who didn't see something like this coming. Not that I expected it to be zombies, mind you, but something. Nuclear war. Economic collapse. Famine and disease. Something like that. Well, I guess we do have most of those now. I'm not sure about the nuclear war, but the radiation meter was spiking last week when we got that storm front from out over the Pacific. All the people who just went about their daily lives like nothing could ever go wrong... I guess I do feel sorry for them. But that doesn't mean I'm going back into town anytime soon to hand out MREs. I'm making my own way and they have to make theirs."

Personality:
"Too bad about that last run. It was on commission - no delivery, no pay. Problem was all those zombies crawling around the loading docks at Fort Stockton. There was NO way I was going to move all that furniture myself, and the dead boys weren't inclined to help.

So I ended up at a truck stop outside of Pyote. You know that place? Phil's Gas and Grub? Yeah, I miss it too. Bunch of those dead boys showed up and killed damned near everyone before me and some other drivers stopped 'em. We talked it over and decided maybe we'd be better off workin' for ourselves. Got me a nice cozy place behind the cab, and a nicer one in back. Even had a feller cut hatches in the top of the cab and the top of the trailer. I don't even have to touch the ground to change rooms.

It's never lonely out here on the road. Got my pals on the CB. Got my regular customers that need freight hauled now and again. Gold is nice, but I usually ask for bullets, which are nicer. Hard to shoot one of them dead boys with a Golden Eagle Twenty-dollar coin, right?"

Quote:
"Yeah, well, you just take the advice of the ol' Meatloaf Express on a dark and stormy night. Stay inside your ride. Lock your doors. And run over the fkers if they stand in the road."

Sometimes I wonder if they ate Henry. The news reports say the living dead don't attack each other, so Henry's probably still alive. But it's too bad the economy collapsed. The alimony payments were nice. So now I've got to move and Henry's probably holed up somewhere with his 24 year old secretary. Damnit.

Skill Packages (10 and 20 Point)

The following are examples of skill packages that can be used to shorten the character generation process for All Flesh Must Be Eaten, a must when you’re running a game with a high casualty rate.

LATENT HEROES

One could argue that many people never live up to their full potential until placed in situations of great stress. This can be reflected in AFMBE games in the following manner:

1. Cast Members are generated as Norms. They are going to become heroes, but don’t know it yet.
2. Once the game starts, the Cast Members have the ability to “add” points to their characters in order to bring out their Latent abilities as Survivors and/or Inspired.
3. In the following example, Average Bob, a Norm, discovers he is actually a Survivor who is better at fighting zombies than he first believed:

Average Bob has spent all his character creation points and is caught off guard as zombies attack his home town. During the course of his adventures he:

1. Discovers he is Stronger than he realized (adds 2 points to Str) and somewhat quicker (adds 1 to Dex). Over the course of the next two weeks, Bob also realizes he is more Perceptive (adds 1 to Per) and stronger willed (adds 2 to Wil) than he realized. This brings him up to 20 points for Attributes for a Survivor.
2. In the same manner, Qualities and Skills can be added to reflect things Average Bob didn’t know about himself. Perhaps he discovers he has a knack for using Guns and can put 5 points of skills into various points.
3. This is done, of course, with the ZM’s guidance and input. It allows Cast Members to start out relatively weak, but progress quickly to a bit tougher status without gratuitous overuse of experience points.

TEMPORARY QUALITIES AND DRAWBACKS

This option allows the ZM to build some interesting situations into the start of a game. The following “Qualities” and “Drawbacks” aren’t recorded with regular ones, as they are temporary and are subject to sudden change once play begins. What is does is allow a ZM to set up a group of Cast Members with various positive and negative starting aspects while still keeping everyone more or less on a level playing field. ZM’s – Feel free to inflict these on your Cast Members without their full knowledge (i.e. giving one “Thinks S/He knows a Safe Place” and telling the Cast Member they have “Has a Safe Place” instead).

Some examples are shown below:

These do not count against a Cast Member’s normal number of Quality/Drawback points. There is no limit on these, but this author recommends no more than 2 or 3 of each for each Cast Member at the start of a game.

Temporary Qualities

At Home (3 points) – the Cast Member begins the game at home and has access to all their personal belongings.
In a Gun Shop (5 points) – the Cast Member begins the game in a gun or sporting goods shop and has access to firearms, ammunition, and perhaps other weapons (assuming they can purchase or otherwise acquire them). They’ll also be surrounded by other armed people, which might or might not be a good thing.

Has a Safe Place (3 points) – the Cast Member knows of a safe and secure location to ride out some of the zombie attack. The location is actually safe and relatively secure, at least at first.

Lots of Friends (4 points) – the Cast Member happens to be in a place where they have a LOT of friendly and reliable support; friends, family, coworkers, Army buddies, etc.

Lucky Strike (2 to 5 points) – the Cast Member is in immediate possession of a very useful item such as a riot gun, armored car, large truck, etc. The Cast Member should know how to use it unless the ZM is a real bastid. The more useful the item(s), the more points this Temporary Quality is worth.

No Ties (3 points) – the Cast Member knows that they have no immediate worries other than their own survival. All their significant others and pets are safe, and their possessions are in no immediate danger.

Good Tip (2 to 4 points) – the Cast Member is in possession of some very useful information that happens to be completely truthful and accurate. That key the guy gave you? Is DOES unlock the weapons’ vault, or that survivalist hangout you heard about? It’s really there. The Cast Member still has to actually get there, but isn’t likely to be disappointed, even after a hard struggle.

Temporary Drawbacks

Away from Home (-3 points) – the Cast Member begins the game somewhere besides home and does not have access to all their personal belongings.

On the Road (-5 points) – the Cast Member is far from home and possess only what they have in their personal luggage (which probably doesn’t include any sort of weapons, actual or improvised).

Thinks S/He Has a Safe Place (-3 points) – the Cast Member thinks he or she has a safe and secure hiding place, but it is in fact compromised or otherwise made undesirable. They won’t know this, however, until they get their. A good example would be a secluded cabin in the woods that a group of heavily armed looters has already occupied.

Nobody Loves Me! (-4 points) – for whatever reason, the Cast Member is in hostile territory before the zombies attack and must contend with not only undead but living enemies.

Injured (-1 to -5 points) – the Cast Member starts the game suffering from an injury or illness that somehow inhibits their abilities. Having a bad case of the flu might be worth 1 point. Being in 4-point traction or having temporarily lost the use of their eyes might be worth 5 points.

Bad Luck! (-2 points) – the Cast Member starts out in a less-than-good situation. Maybe they are caught in the shower covered in soap with no clothes and must escape the undead hordes. Maybe they’re wearing a Halloween Costume and makeup and look like a zombie. Or in formal wear with really uncomfortable shoes. Either way, they’re in for a rougher time than might ordinarily be the case.

Cut Off (-3 points) – the Cast Member has been caught separated from someone or something that they must try to rescue or acquire as part of the game. This could be a family member or other loved one, medication, substances for addicts, or something important from work. At any rate, they must try to get to their goal before attempting other storylines.

Bad Tip (-4 points) – the Cast Member is in possession of some information that s/he believes to be very useful and accurate, but in reality is complete bull$hit. The Cast Member still has to fight his or her way to the goal, but will find out that there’s either nothing there, or nothing is as it seems. The key doesn’t work, or the cache is empty, or the helicopter has already left town (and possibly left a time bomb behind in its wake).

Descriptions:

Sub-norms are those people in the world that are just not quite up to speed due to age or just plain lack of common sense. They don’t gain extra points for selecting mandatory Drawbacks. Mandatory drawbacks for Sub-Norms are just a way of describing emotional baggage that the character doesn’t notice or is incapable of counterbalancing. Sub-Norms are designed to be used to fill in groups of player characters without adding full-blown well-balanced NPCs. Some of these Sub-Norms have useful skills, some don’t. It may simply depend on what the characters are looking for in companions at the moment. In all cases, however, the party may end up wishing they’d left the Sub-Norm(s) wherever they found them.

Zombie Fodder – These are those wild-eyed scary folks that like to swing sharp things without shouting “Clear!” and enjoy cleaning loaded guns. They may be able to make a dent in the zombie hordes, but will not last long without a lot of support and guidance. If you’ve ever seen someone who, after watching an action movie, began to emulate the lead character in dress and attitude, but who make no effort to learn the skills or develop the attributes that the lead character possesses, chances are they are Zombie Fodder. Example Quote: “Ninja Warrior Revenge 4 with Dudey Davidokov! I’m SO there, dude!”

Born Victim – These people have always relied on someone else to watch out for them and take care of the various problems that life can present, especially in the face of a zombie invasion. They may have useful skills or traits, but can typically be described as incompetent in just about everything pertaining to individual survival. They might rely on family ties or friendship, or looks, resources, or sex to get a person or persons to take care of them. These folks make good 1 or 2 point Dependents. Example Quote: “Help! Help! Somebody help me, please!”

Adventure seeds can be developed around saving a Sub-Norm or group of same. Lord knows there are plenty of them out there that need help.

Description:

The Rise of the Living Dead has taken a heavy toll on the survivors. Many bear permanent wounds due to gunfire, building collapse, automobile accidents, etc. Others have been mentally shattered by the bloodshed, death of loved ones, too many close calls with looters or zombies, and the knowledge that there is no more society safety net (i.e. police, fire departments, emergency medical services, etc.)

These poor folks need help, and it is very likely that only the player characters will be able to provide it. Alternately, an interesting (and terrifying) campaign could be built around a group of the Walking Wounded who have banded together to survive.

Can't find an Archetype with just the right set of skills? No problems. With TZ's EZ Archetypes Method, you can create any sort of character in a matter of minutes.

1. Take any other Archetype and remove 6 points worth of skills.
2. Replace with the following 6 points of skills:

For example, if you can't find just the right "Criminal Edge" Archetype:

Stripper
Dance 3, Specialty: Striptease 5 (4 points)
Seduction 1, Specialty: Striptease 3 (2 points)

Pimp
Streetwise 4 (4 points)
Haggling 1, Specialty: Vice 3 (2 points)

Drug Dealer
Streetwise 3, Specialty: Drug Culture 5 (4 points)
Haggling 1, Specialty: Illegal Drugs (2 points)

Undercover Cop
Streetwise 3 (3 points)
Surveillance 3 (3 points)

Surveillance Expert
Surveillance 2 (2 points)
Electronic Surveillance 2 (2 points)
Electronics 2 (2 points)

On-The-Spot Reporter
Research/Investigation 2 (2 points)
Questioning 2 or Smooth Talking 2 (2 points)
Camerawork 2 (2 points) – See “One of the Living” (Eden Studios, Inc.)

Forensics Specialist
Camerawork 2 (2 points)
Science 1, Specialty Forensics 3 (2 points)
Research/Investigation or Questioning 2 (2 points)

Former/Retired Gang Member
Streetwise 2 (2 points)
Brawling 1 (1 point)
Dodge 1 (1 point)
Guns (Handgun) 1 (1 point)
Intimidation 1 (1 point)
Prostitute
Seduction 1, Specialty: Johns 3 (2 points)
Streetwise 2 (2 points)
Haggling 1 (1 point)
Brawling or Hand Weapon (Knife) 1 (1 point)

Reformed Junkie
Streetwise 2, Specialty: Drugs 4 (3 points)
Haggling 3 (3 points)

And so on.

And if you don't want (or are not allowed) to run a Special Ops Sniper or Generic Combat Monster Archetype, you can try the following:

Army Reservist (for non-military Archetypes)
Guns (Assault Rifle) 2 (2 points)
Throwing (Grenade) 2 (2 points)
2 more points into Military Occupational Specialty (i.e. what the Archetype does when serving their military time);
Suggestions include Drive (Tank), Guns (Cannon), Mechanic, Electronics, etc. (2 points)

Coast Guard Reserve (for non-military archetypes)
Pilot (Cutter) 2 (2 points)
Swimming 2 (2 points)
2 more points into MOS (2 points)

Martial Arts Student or Shao-lin Shopkeeper
Martial Arts 2 (4 points)
Trance 1 (2 points)
or
Martial Arts 3 (6 points)

Tough Guy/Girl
Brawling 2 (2 points)
Dodge 2 (2 points)
Streetwise 2 (2 points)

Radical Political Extremist
Guns (Rifle) 2 (2 points)
Humanities 1, Specialty: Extremist Philosophy 3 (2 points)
Notice 2 (2 points)

Likewise, various fringe people can be created:

Chronic Fanboy/Fangirl
Disguise 1, Specialty (Costuming) 3 (2 points)
Fine Arts (Art Genre) 1, Specialty (particular movie/book/comic) 3 (2 points)
Research/Investigation 1, Specialty (finding fan stuff) 3 (2 points)
Internet Junkie
Computers 2
Electronics 2
Research/Investigation 2

Fun With Qualities/Drawbacks

Fleshing out oddball Archetypes is also EZ with a little creativity. For example, why stick with the same old boring Qualities and Drawbacks. Try the following:

Addiction (Internet)
Contacts (Criminals)
Contacts (Crooked Cops)
Obsession (particular movie, novel or comic series)
Resistance (Methamphetamine)
Resistance (Sleep)
Secret (Is a Cop on the Take)
Secret (Is an Exotic Dancer)

See what I mean?

These mods will work with pretty much any Archetype. Even Cops/Police Officers could have the Stripper, Pimp or Drug Dealer skill set and be undercover Vice Squad members. People from all walks of life are in the military reserves and study martial arts.

And these are just suggestions, obviously - there are a lot of other ways any Archetype or character can be defined using a variety of skills and specialties.
